One of the most common uses of a name tag is to rename pets, giving them a personalized name. For example, you can rename a wolf after your real-life pet or give all your cattle specific names to help identify them. There is a tangible benefit to using name tags: They help personalize your playing experience and make it easier to keep track of multiple mobs in a confined space. Minecraft also has several fun Easter eggs tied to name tag use. Here are a few you can easily try out for yourself: If you name a rabbit "Toast," it will gain a unique skin. If you name a vindicator "Johnny," it will become hostile towards others. Using a name tag to rename anyone "Grumm" or "Dinnerbone" will invert their character model. The only mob in the game that can't be renamed is the Ender Dragon. Beyond that, players are free to make liberal use of name tags. How to find name tags Unfortunately, it's not possible to craft name tags in Minecraft. Instead, you'll have to either find them in the wild or purchase them from a villager. Name tags are pretty rare objects, but you can stumble upon them in chests scattered throughout your realm. It's also possible to find them while fishing, although the odds of that are pretty slim. If you don't want to waste time looking for name tags, it's possible to purchase them for 20 emeralds from master-level librarians. How to use name tags Using a name tag is a much easier process than finding one. First, take your name tag to an anvil and rename it — if you don't rename it, you won't be able to use it! The cost of this varies between PC and console versions but should cost no more than five experience levels. Once you've renamed the tag, simply walk up to the mob you want to use it on and interact with them while holding the name tag. That's it! Your targeted mob should now display their new name above their head. Mobs can be renamed as often as you like, so feel free to change things up whenever the mood strikes. Name tags can also be renamed at anvils multiple times before applying them to an NPC, so you'll never have to worry about picking the perfect name. Editors' Recommendations This Minecraft tutorial explains how to use a name tag with screenshots and step-by-step instructions. In Minecraft, you can give a mob a name with a name tag, but first you need to use an anvil to add the name to the name tag. Let's explore how to do this in the game. Required Materials to Use a Name Tag In Minecraft, these are the materials you need to use a name tag: Steps to Use a Name Tag 1. Place the Anvil Once you have the required materials, add the anvil to your hotbar so that it is an item that you can use. Next, position your pointer (plus sign) on the block where you want to place the anvil. You should see the block become highlighted in your game window. The game control to place the anvil depends on the version of Minecraft: For Java Edition (PC/Mac), right click on the block. For Pocket Edition (PE), you tap on the block. For Xbox 360 and Xbox One, press the LT button on the Xbox controller. For PS3 and PS4, press the L2 button on the PS controller. For Wii U, press the ZL button on the gamepad. For Nintendo Switch, press the ZL button on the controller. For Windows 10 Edition, right click on the block. For Education Edition, right click on the block. 2. Use the Anvil To use the anvil, you need to stand in front of it. The game control to use the anvil depends on the version of Minecraft: For Java Edition (PC/Mac), right click on the anvil. For Wii U, press the ZL button on the gamepad. For Nintendo Switch, press the ZL button on the controller. For Windows 10 Edition, right click on the anvil. For Education Edition, right click on the anvil. Now your anvil is open and you can see the Repair & Name menu. 3. Add the Name to the Name Tag Next, you need to add a name to the name tag. To do this, start by moving the name tag into the first slot. Then click on the brown box where it says "Name Tag" so that you can add a name. Press the Delete key to remove the words "Name Tag" and then type the name you would like to call your mob. In this example, we have typed the name Daisy. This is what we want to call our cow in the game. In the third slot, you will see the name tag that has the name of Daisy. It will cost 1 experience level to change the name tag. 4. Move the Name Tag to Inventory Now, move the name tag from the third slot into your inventory hotbar. The 1 experience level will be deducted from your experience bar. 5. Put the Name Tag on the Mob Now that you have finished the name tag, you need to put it on your mob. In this example, we want to use it on our cow. Stand in front of the cow with the name tag selected in the hot bar. The game control to use the name tag depends on the version of Minecraft: For Java Edition (PC/Mac), right click on the cow. For Pocket Edition (PE), you tap on the cow. For Xbox 360 and Xbox One, press the LT button on the Xbox controller. For PS3 and PS4, press the L2 button on the PS controller.
